object is about the size of a small automobile with four cylindrical protrusions with bolts and four handles along the top side. Boudin says only a February low tide exposes the obstacle which could damage a boat or injure a water skier. The Civil Defense director requests anyone who knows what the object is to call his office. He also asks citizens to report detailed descriptive information on locations of other dangerous hazards in local waters. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Federal official to decide unionization procedure for Borg-Warner builder

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
A non-union Texas corporation is constructing Borg-Warner Chemical's Port Bienville Industrial Park plant, but a regional director of the National Labor Relations Board in New Orleans will decide if pipefitters and pipewelders at the plant construction site will be able to seek union representation.

The NLRB conducted a hearing in Gulfport on Feb. 9 to discuss a petition filed by Pipefitters' Local 568 on Jan. 22, requesting union representation.

As a result of the hearing a labor board official said he would decide 'what categories of personnel' in the pipe department of Universal Maintenance Corp., plant contractor, would vote in an election deciding union representation.

"This type of operation goes on all the time," he added.

"Once the plant is in operation there are several unions which could claim jurisdiction," Weaver stated.

Fred Lewis, NLRB regional director, Tuesday said in New Orleans, "Briefs have been filed by those concerned in this union matter and a decision regarding the election is pending."

The regional director said the decisions regarding an election rests solely in his hands.

"I'm going to make the decision, but I'm not going to tell you what it will be when I do," Lewis said.

"I will decide whether or not an election will be conducted and if so which groups will vote," Lewis explained.

"The local union has asked that pipefitters and pipewelders be allowed to vote in such an election," he noted.

Reportedly some 50 people work in UMC's piping department out of a total work force estimated at 150.

New building opens for Special Ed children

By BRENT MACEY
A new special education building at Hancock North Central Elementary School Wednesday opened its doors to children in the special education program.

The building is also housing first grade students of Hancock North Central Elementary.

The six-classroom building is also the new office for the elementary school principal and secretaries.

All classrooms, however, are especially designed for special education students.

According to Harlin Hill, federal coordinator for the Hancock County School District and director of special education, three of those rooms will be used for special education purposes.

The remaining three classrooms will house first grade students at the school.

He said federal laws require at least 50 percent regular classroom students be housed in the same building with special education students.

Students who will benefit from construction of the new facility include trainable mentally retarded students formerly located at Silver Creek School; learning disabled students and educable mentally retarded students formerly instructed in trailers on the Hancock North Central campus.

First graders formerly in the second grade classroom building and the main building, now also share classroom space in the new building.

The new classrooms are all carpeted wall-to-wall, include sinks and restrooms adjoining the rooms. All the restrooms have special facilities and the building also has special drinking fountains in the hallways. In addition, the Trainable Mentally Retarded room is equipped with a shower.

Elvina Barnes, EMR instructor now located in the new building, said Wednesday, "I cannot describe the feeling. We are all elated and very happy."

Barnes along with special education instructors Phyllis Farr and Edie Hannah formerly shared the trailer facility. Farr and Hannah who teach LD students were partitioned off in one section with Barnes teaching the EMR students in the other section.

"We were cramped to say the least," Barnes said in reference to the old trailer.

According to Hill, the Special Education Department is currently involved in its twice annual 'child find' program.

He said federal law requires all

ANEW LOOK—The Hancock County Jail and Courthouse will be taking on a new look in the near future. Prisoners Jimmy Johnston, left, and Prince Fulton, right, dig a foundation for the addition of two rooms behind the County Sheriff's Department office while Deputies Dennis Tartavouille and Glen Strong, Investigator Alvin Linder, Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson and Investigator Delbert Seay observe. Funds for construction were provided by three different grants totaling $15,000 recently awarded to the sheriff's department. Peterson said the funds will also be used for enlarging a kitchen area, building a doorway from the dispatcher's office into the jail and purchasing a washing machine and dryer. The courthouse is scheduled to be sandblasted, sealed and repainted white. The Hancock County Board of Supervisors recently authorized signing a special contract with South Mississippi Building and Construction Trades Council of Gulfport. ## Sheriff rules suicide in local woman's death

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

The Hancock County Sheriff's Department has determined suicide as motive in the strangulation hanging death of a local woman.

The incident is the second local suicide in the past two weeks.

Investigator Alvin Wednesday afternoon said at 4:45 p.m. Tuesday the sheriff's office received a call from Mobile Medic personnel reporting a woman found dead near her residence on Ninth Street located near the Waveland city limits.

"When deputies arrived they found Betty Ruth Rice, 27, dead at the scene," Ladner stated.

The investigator said Rice was found hanging by the neck in a washroom near her mobile home residence.

"She apparently pushed a washing machine and dryer together, got on top of the machines, tied one end of a small rope to a rafter in the building and the other end around her neck, then jumped off the appliances," Ladner explained.

"It was determined by Acting Coroner John Chevis that Rice died from strangulation due to the hanging," the investigator noted.

"The sheriff's department has ruled the woman's death a suicide," Ladner stated.

The investigator reported a 'suicide note' and a photograph of the woman and her two children were found near her body.

"A preliminary examination of handwriting on the suicide note matches other samples of handwriting found in Rice's trailer," Ladner said.

"In an investigation we learned the woman's two children had been taken from her by the Hancock County Youth Court," Ladner stated.

The suicide note in essence says the woman could not continue living without her children.

"We have no evidence whatsoever of any foul play involved," Ladner said dispelling rumors of murder.

The investigator noted Rice's boyfriend, Jack Bailey, visited with her a few hours before the apparent suicide.

"Bailey said Rice told him to take her pack of cigarettes because she wouldn't need them anymore. He also said the woman was very depressed and just layed in bed without saying anything," the investigator explained.

Ladner said Rice and Bailey had recently moved here from Arizona.

"Our investigation is not complete at this time, but death was caused by strangulation," Ladner said.

Responding to the incident were Deputies David Hurttag, Nathan Hoda, Glen Jackson, Fairley Necaice, and Ronald Cuevas, and Ladner.

He stated search efforts that night were hindered due to the 'choppy and murky condition of the water.'

Renewed efforts Saturday revealed the right front passenger window was broken out.

"The girl was found up underneath the dash board," Pendergraph said. He stated search efforts continue three hours a day for Acker's body.

Pendergraph said a 'good description of Fortner's car and a vague description of the driver' were given to police by witnesses after the accident.

At approximately 11:45 p.m. State police located a car at the Waffle House Restaurant in Slidell fitting the description of the vehicle, he said.

Pendergraph said a piece of tire he found at the scene of the accident 'fit perfectly' into a 'slashed' portion of Fortner's automobile tire.

Paint also found on Fortner's car later proved to be identical to the paint on Acker's car.

A breath analyzer test taken at approximately 1 a.m. indicated Fortner had a .12 alcohol content reading, police stated.

Pendergraph said restaurant personnel stated Fortner was not consuming any alcohol while at the restaurant.

Judging from Fortner's height, weight and build, Pendergraph said police estimate Fortner's alcohol reading at the time of the accident would have been .18.

A reading of .10 is considered legally intoxicated.

Fortner was arrested and booked with two counts of manslaughter, one count of driving while intoxicated and one count of hit and run.

He is currently in New Orleans Parish Prison with bond set at $20,000.

Police said because of cold lake water temperatures at this time, some three weeks may be required before a body will surface.

In the meantime, dragging operations continue over an ever-widening area, the New Orleans police reported.

Melissa Acker's survivors include her mother, Vincetina Acker; a sister, Wanda Acker, both of Gretna; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Acker of Bay St. Louis; three uncles, Steve Acker and Donald Acker, both of Bay St. Louis, and Alexander Acker Jr. of New Orleans; four aunts, Gloria Acker of Bay St. Louis, Augusta Clements of Gulfport, Janet Green of Natchez, and Ronda Thigpen of Joliet, Ill.

Oklahoma! scheduled on Hancock Cable Ch. 7

Bristol Myers Theatre will present the musical movie 'Oklahoma!' starring Shirley Jones and Gordon MacRae Monday, March 2 at 7 p.m. on WTBS, Atlanta, Ch. 7, on the Hancock Cable system.

Based on Rodgers and Hammerstein's Broadway hit of the 1940's, which has recently been revived in New York, Oklahoma! is a singing and dancing treat for the entire family, set on the wholesome plains of the Oklahoma Territory, just prior to statehood.

Shirley Jones is radiant as Laurey, a sweet but spicy young girl coyly in love with a cowboy named Curly, played by Gordon MacRae.

Their romance unfolds around the preparations for the big town dance, underscored by lively dancing with excellent Agnes DeMille choreography, and such unforgettable songs as "Oh, What A Beautiful Morning," "Surrey With The Fringe On Top," "Territory Folks" and, of course, the rousing title song, "Oklahoma!"

Laurey almost loses Curly when she tells the farm hand, Jud (Rod Steiger), a black-hearted character intent on having Laurey for himself, that he can escort her to the dance, but Curly comes through in the clutch when Jud shows his true, shady colors and threatens danger.

Gloria Grahame plays Laurey's friend, the effervescent Ado Annie.

Underground telephone cables fall victim to Spring digging

"South Central Bell puts cables underground to protect the cables and to help keep Mississippi communities beautiful. But we need the help of all diggers to protect those cables," said Franklin Kyle Jr., district manager for the Telephone Company.

"We ask that contractors, machine operators or homeowners planning to dig, please call our buried cable information service before you dig," Kyle added.

"We'll tell you the location of the buried cable. If necessary, our cable locator will visit the site and mark the cable location for you - at no charge," he said.

One cut telephone cable can disrupt service for hundreds of customers. The emergency work required to repair such damage can cost thousands of dollars, and the expense must be borne by the party responsible for the damage.

"Spring is that time of year when most excavation work occurs," said Kyle.

Activity in the yard, on the farm, and at construction sites picks up as people take to the soil just to do a little digging here or there.

Quite often the digging produces some unexpected results - one being a cut telephone cable.

"So, it just makes sense to consult us before you dig," Kyle said.

Disruption of vital service is the most important aspect of the problem. South Central Bell faces when a buried telephone cable is cut or damaged, according to Kyle.

school districts undertake such a program to find qualified children for the program each year.

The school district must report its findings to the Special Education section of the United States State Department on or before March 1, of each year.

Hill said the school district is currently sending letters home via students enrolled in all county schools, advertising through the media and word of mouth to inform parents of the special education program.

"Anyone can recommend a child for the program but usually the child is referred by the parent or teacher," Hill said.

The process required before a child can receive special education includes having a local survey committee composed of members of the regular school teaching staff, special education teachers and "sometimes administrators" check an individual's records and make a determination of whether the child needs to be evaluated.

"If the committee agrees, then a formal evaluation is conducted by the school psychologist," Hill said.

If the committee agrees with the psychologist's recommendation of what programs are necessary for the child, then the recommendation is sent to a regional screening team at the University of Mississippi in Hattiesburg.

"That group makes the final determination," Hill said.

He said the parent is included in all steps of the process, adding, "The parent must sign the individualized education program recommended before the child can be enrolled in the class room."

Hill said the Special Education Department has grown "tremendously" in the past five years since its beginning in 1976.

Some 54 special education students were enrolled at that time.

"Now the program is serving 254 students with 44 in the process of being evaluated," Hill said.

Fourteen special education classes are currently being conducted in the Hancock County School District.

Gulfview, Hancock North Central and Charles B. Murphy Elementary Schools, all have one classroom dedicated to teaching EMR students.

Hancock North Central High School has two EMR classrooms.

Two LD classrooms are contained in both Hancock North Central High, Hancock North Central Elementary and Gulfview Elementary.

Charles B. Murphy school has one LD course.

Special Education for pre-school children aged three to five is also being conducted at Silver Creek.

In addition, a "gifted and talented program" for grades one through six is being developed at Hancock North Central Elementary.

Hill said an evaluation process is now being conducted at that school to determine which students will qualify for the program slated to begin next year.

He stated the evaluation process for the gifted and talented program will be incorporated into all county schools next year.

Hill said the school district hopes to hire three teachers for the gifted and talented program; two for EMR classes and one more speech therapist for next school year.

The current speech therapist travels to all county schools.

Hill said he hoped to hire a speech therapist for Gulfview Elementary and Charles B. Murphy Elementary School located in the southern part of the school district and keep one teacher for the northern area.

Hill said the special education program now deals with children ages one to 18.

"After 1984 or 1985, the school district will have to serve children from birth to age 21," Hill said.

Elementary School located on Necaise Avenue and proceed to Main, turning on to Second.

The parade will stop at city hall for the toast by the mayor and city council, proceed right on to Union Street then left onto Hancock and then right on Sycamore Street to the Old Spanish Trail.

The parade will then turn right onto Booker Street and left on Necaise Avenue where the parade will disband at St. Rose Elementary School.

Some 17 units will parade in Pearlinton, including floats, marching units and truck band.

Lorri Watkins, the Pearlinton

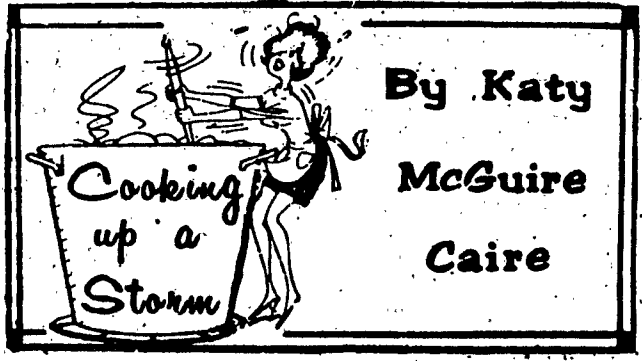

VFD's Miss Torch, will reign as queen of the first-year parade there.

Maids are Robin Autry and Jeannie Bell.

Co-captains and coordinators of the event are Irma Delacroix and Dianne Watkins.

Delacroix said the parade will form on Hwy. 604 north of the town near the NSTL buffer zone line.

The units will proceed south on Hwy. 604 to the Oak Harbor Subdivision, return to US-90 to Annette York Realty office, then take White's Road to Hwy. 604 to the Pearlinton Fire Station where the parade will disband.

"I love a parade" — don't we all! And there are certainly enough parades around these days to gladden everyone's heart. And along with parades I like something good to munch on while I'm waiting — and waiting for the parade to pass.

We had quite a family feast, as usual, while awaiting Nereids parade Sunday in Waveland, with various members of the clan bringing along "goodies" of all sorts.

I'd been stuffing eggs with mustard-mayo-green onion-celery mixture till I was growing dizzy, and just about that time I spied the leftover Tapenade which I'd mixed up as a dip for raw vegetables a couple of days before.

Tapenade, that robust garlicky, anchovy-black olive concoction from the South of France, is one of those "like-it-or-loathe-it" dishes. I love this "caviar of the Provence region" — and use it in many ways, as a topping for buttered toast squares at cocktail time, as dip for vegetables or boiled shrimp, as stuffing for celery, and so on. (But, if you hate anchovies, skip this recipe!)

I've even been known to sneak it by the spoonful from the jar when I think no one's looking. It keeps well in a jar in the refrigerator for days and days.

Well, as I was saying — I am a rather wordy sort, I admit — I was tired of the plain filling for the hard-cooked eggs, so I mixed some yolks with the tapenade ... and there wasn't one stuffed egg left over when the last float had passed.

So, here's

TAPENADE

1 can (8 oz.) ripe olives, pitted, drained

1 can flat filets of anchovies, drained

2 cloves garlic

¼ cup parsley, chopped

4 tablespoons olive oil

Coarse ground black pepper, lots and lots

Pinch of thyme (optional)

Dash of brandy (optional)

Chop everything fine, fine and pound or mash up — or whiz in the blender to a puree — though I prefer the coarser texture of the old South of France way. That's it — use as you will.

For the tapenade eggs, I just mixed the yolks with some of the tapenade and stuffed the whites. I used a lot of tapenade; you may prefer a milder proportion. Refrigerate the leftover tapenade and use as you wish.

I like to top raw oysters in the shells with tapenade and bread crumbs, and bake or broil till sizzling hot. You may want to rinse your anchovies to take away some of the salt, also.

Sunday started as a very gloomy day with indications of rain continuing for the annual Nereids Parade.

In conversation with an annual marcher, she was in serious doubt about marching at 11 a.m. as rain was still falling.

Well, as you all know, the sun broke through the clouds before the parade started to roll.

There were thousands of fans to greet Nereids XV Queen as she led the parade through the streets of Waveland.

Mardi Gras is still with us with the Pass Christian parade scheduled for Sunday and Triton's parade next Tuesday.

We hope you all have a ball.

Local law enforcement agencies seem to break up one crime ring and another crops up.

We seem to have a rash of burglaries in our area again and it is possible that we as citizens could help eliminate some of the crime.

There will be two burglary seminars, one for merchants and the other for citizens.

The two seminars are sponsored by Mayor Larry Bennett and Police Chief Douglas Williams with participation and support of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce. We hope you all will attend.

The seminars will be held at Bay Senior High Gym for merchants on March 5 and for citizens on March 6.

Sponsors of the crime prevention seminars will bring experts in all areas to offer us ways and means of better protecting our properties.

Robert Kane, Chamber retail committee chairman reports that special marking pens will be given out at these seminars for marking identifications on equipment and home furnishings and valuables.

These pens, according to Kane, will put markings only visible to an infrared light in possession of the Bay Police Department.

The seminars will be from 6 to 10 p.m. each night and we hope all will attend next Thursday or Friday.

NEWS
GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

Governor William Winter, was in Washington, D.C. early this week for a series of meetings with members of Congress, President Reagan, and his fellow governors.

In his meeting with President Reagan Monday afternoon, Winter noted that he is in full agreement with the President's efforts to streamline the federal bureaucracy.

Since taking office 14 months ago Winter has reduced the staff of federal-state programs in Mississippi by 25 percent.

But Winter went on to stress that certain programs, such as the Farmers Home Administration, the Appalachian Regional Commission, Rural Electric Associations and others are vital to the economic health of a largely rural and agricultural state like Mississippi.

Also while in Washington Winter met with members of the Mississippi Congressional delegation.

Their discussions centered on the governor's efforts to insure that Mississippi is not saddled with a disproportionate share of President Reagan's budget cuts.

Winter, who is vice chairman of the National Governors' Association Committee on Economic and Community Development, met with the chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee to discuss Industrial Revenue Bond policy.

Winter has taken a leadership role in economic development initiatives on the national as well as the state level.

On Monday morning Winter, who is recognized as an adept and skillful governmental technician, led a seminar for the nation's governors on effective gubernatorial leadership, management and legislative relations.

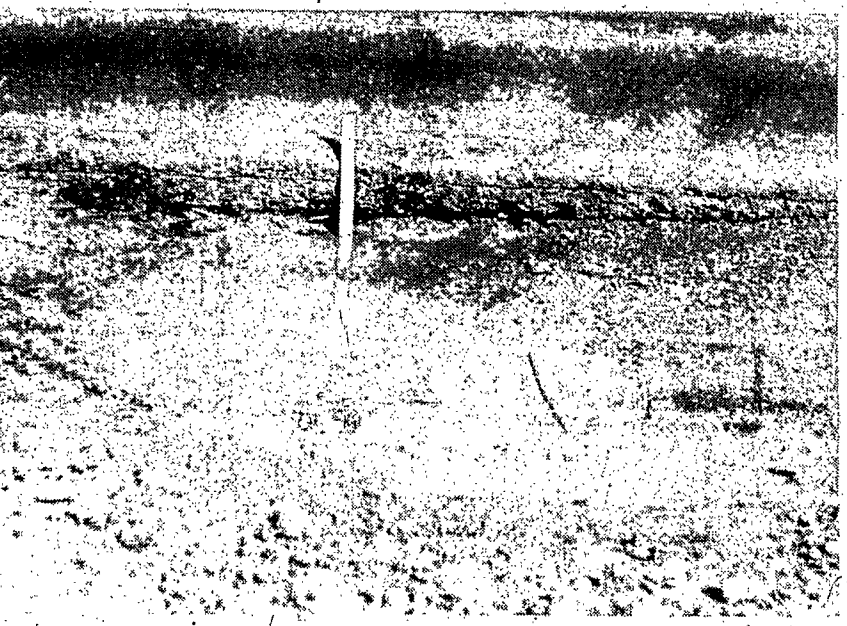

A bill to reorganize the state Forestry Commission has been signed by Governor William Winter. The governor, who was a strong advocate of the measure, said, "This change should bring stability to commission operations, help insulate the agency against politics, and insure that it operates on a highly professional basis."

Since assuming office a little more than one year ago, Winter has taken steps to professionalize the operations of several important state agencies and departments.

In signing the bill Winter noted that forest products are one of Mississippi's most important natural resources and that the forest products industry is the state's single largest employer.

PREDICTING THE FUTURE—An automobile driver might end up at the destination this sign points to, above, if a vehicle is driven into this 10-inch deep hole on the shoulder of US-90 at Dunbar Avenue in Bay St. Louis. A close-up view of the hazard is shown below. Some two weeks ago heavy rains and traffic eroded this highway cavern, but no repairs have been undertaken. The State Highway Department should immediately fill this dangerous drop-off and install paved shoulder turning lanes to provide a safer intersection here for drivers.

Washington Report

By Congressman Trent Lott

5th District, Mississippi

REBUILDING

Every major department of the federal government was reviewed by the Reagan administration before the President announced his economic improvement package last week.

Even so, some criticism of the package has surfaced among liberals in Congress who claim that federal spending will be slashed at the expense of the poor and needy. Not so.

The President proposes to cut the growth of federal spending, while maintaining a safety net in social programs that will provide necessary care for the truly poor and needy.

Further, no major department was immune from review. Even the Department of Defense came up with a number of cuts which reduced the budget increase needed to restore our military balance. These measures will save $2.9 billion in 1982 outlays and, by 1986, a total of $28.2 billion will have been saved.

Thankfully, the Defense Department's budget will be increased by $169.5 billion over the next five years. This is necessary, as the President told us, to "rebuild the nation's defenses."

Just as important as the new money, however, is the attitude of the new individuals who will serve as the chief policymakers of the various branches of the service.

I had the opportunity to talk with all three, Navy Secretary John Lehman, Army Secretary John Marsh and Air Force Secretary Vernon Orr, and explained to them the interest Mississippians have in a strong national defense.

My impression is that the branches of the military are in good hands.

Navy Secretary Lehman and I discussed the possibility of a stepped-up Navy shipbuilding program. While the details remain to be determined, I have every reason to believe that the Navy's shipbuilding program will increase substantially under the Reagan administration and that the role of Ingalls Shipbuilding in Pascagoula will be a major one.

Air Force Secretary Orr was extremely interested in the mission of Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi, and ways to strengthen it in the future.

Army Secretary Marsh and I discussed the Mississippi Army ammunition plant in Hancock County, which is under construction. I am excited about the role Mississippians will play in production of advanced artillery ammunition for the Army when this plant is completed.

All in all, the future of our nation's defense looks exceptionally bright under President Reagan and the individuals he has chosen to head the branches of service. I plan to continue working closely with them as specific legislation reaches Congress.

CONSUMER
ATTORNEY GENERALVENDING MACHINE
OPERATORS

Attorney General Bill Allain warns consumers to be very cautious when investing their money in get-rich-quick vending machine operations. Allain says that vending machine promoters virtually abound in the South with attractive advertisements promising high profits of as much as $1000 with a minimum investment and only 8 to 12 hours of your time each week.

Basically, these promoters have one primary interest of selling their machines in mind and because of this the machines may be of inferior quality and be grossly over priced. After purchasing your machines you may find that you have purchased a $50 vending machine for as much as $500.

Senator
Cochran
reports

A New Beginning

New respect for the United States must be instilled around the world. I believe the President and Secretary of State Alexander Haig are making a forceful effort to accomplish this.

Congress and the administration have begun moving to implement the mandate for firm leadership voiced at the polls by the American people last November.

In the U.S. Senate, we have been holding confirmation hearings and voting on the Senate floor to confirm those nominated to Cabinet positions by the President. This has all been completed with the exception of the nominee for Secretary of Labor.

The new administration has some excellent people in positions of leadership, in the Cabinet, and in Cabinet-level positions such as the special trade representative, former Senator Bill Brock of Tennessee.

For my own part, we have organized the Appropriations and Agriculture Committees, on which I serve. The Agriculture Committee, of course, held confirmation hearings on Agriculture Secretary John Block and I have personally made known to him my concern that he be fully aware of the problems and goals of Southern agriculture.

The Appropriations Committee is now receiving budgetary and fiscal policy briefings in preparation for our work on the Fiscal Year 1982 budget. In the Agriculture Committee we are planning field hearings in the near future on the 1981 farm bill.

As some of you may have heard, recommendations have been made to the White House and appropriate Cabinet officers for key appointments to federal positions in the state of Mississippi in the fields of agriculture and justice.

I am convinced the appointments which have been recommended are excellent choices, and that the individuals named will do an outstanding job in their various capacities.

It is my hope that all other federal positions within our state will also be filled by the most qualified individuals available. There is no substitute for competence and ability, and our citizens deserve a government that is run by the best and most qualified individuals.

You can be assured that my recommendations to the President will be based first on that important consideration.

The 97th Congress and the Reagan administration should work together in a partnership to reach solutions to the problems and questions confronting our nation.

Whether in legislation, appointments, foreign policy, or the tough economic decisions which must be made, a spirit of cooperation and the willingness to provide responsible leadership are what our country needs.

By working together, I believe this challenge is going to be met.

ASCS APPOINTMENTS

U.S. Senator Thad Cochran (R. Miss.) this week announced his recommendations for the remaining four members of the state ASCS Committee and that agricultural agency's executive directorship.

Earlier, Senator Cochran recommended that Agriculture Secretary John Block appoint Leflore County farmer Hobson Gary chairman of the state ASCS Committee, which sets farm policies administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in the state.

Senator Cochran has recommended that Block appoint the following Mississippians to fill the remaining four ASCS Committee posts:

Zack Strong of Copiah County, O.M. Tilley of Jackson County, Mack Thompson Jr. of Benton County, and Braxton Bullock of Jefferson Davis County.

The Senator said he was also recommending that Tom Barron of Indianola, a career ASCS worker, be named executive director. "Tom Barron has a distinguished record, and has been cited at the state and national level for his outstanding work in ASCS," he commented.

Senator Cochran said the ASCS Committee members he is asking Block to appoint "are knowledgeable about agriculture and the programs administered by ASCS." He said, "I am convinced they will do a good job on behalf of the farmers of our state."

Strong is a cattle and cotton farmer in the Carpenter area of Copiah County, and Tilley is a soybean, cattle and corn farmer in the Hurley community of Jackson County. Thompson is a soybean and cattle farmer in the Hickory Flat area of Benton County, and Bullock grows soybeans and wheat in the Carson community of Jefferson Davis County.

Barron is an area director of ASCS, supervising the agency's work and personnel in an 11-county area of the South Delta and adjacent hills.

Senator Cochran noted that the five-member state ASCS Committee was geographically balanced, with one from each Congressional district.

FARMERS HOME DIRECTOR

Late last week, the senator recommended that James L. Perry Jr. of Philadelphia be appointed the new state director of the Farmers Home Administration.

Senator Cochran made the recommendation in a letter to Agriculture Secretary John Block and the White House.

"I believe Pete Perry has the experience in business, finance, and agriculture to administer this very important agency and its programs in our state," the Senator commented.

Perry, 31, is a Philadelphia contractor and businessman, and also oversees family farming operations in Benton County, raising cattle and soybeans.

A native of Neshoba County, Perry is a graduate of Mississippi State University and has been president and general manager of his family's construction firm headquartered in Philadelphia.

He has also been active in local, state and national Republican party organizations, and is presently serving as a member of the state GOP Executive Committee, Senator Cochran pointed out.

"Farmers Home is one of the most important federal agencies operating in our state," the Senator stated, "and I have decided to recommend Pete Perry after very careful consideration of a number of fine potential nominees for the position."

The Farmers Home Administration is responsible for a wide range of agricultural, community development and economic loan and grant programs, including farm production, rural housing, water and sewer systems, and others.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions
About Advertising and Business Topics.By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

Through the years I've had occasion to work with several public benefits and generally the news media has been very cooperative. But, we do have trouble getting notices run early or more than a very few times. What's The Deal?

Dear WTD: The deal is you may be trying to take advantage of a situation in which you are asking a businessman who must show a profit for too much free time or space.

As you note most newsmedia are quite generous, but within certain bounds, reasonable bounds.

Early notices may be important to you but media managers are primarily in the business of attracting an audience through news and entertainment. This makes it possible for them to sell advertising which pays most of the overall cost of production.

Your notices are judged in part on the basis of local news value and in part on the public service obligation they feel.

So if the notices are being used at all it seems you have little or no room for complaint. The use of such items is a matter of editorial discretion.

Most public service agencies have realized, as you apparently have come to realize, the importance of public announcements. And like most businessmen in the same situation they elect to budget for such contacts. Some use direct mail, but most opt for the local media.

Some directors of public service drives feel it may "turn off" or alienate their supporters if they spend funds on advertising.

But most managers and supporters as well are sophisticated enough to realize that such expenditures, if wisely made, will be returned many fold.

So, if you are now getting some media support of your efforts, it seems a modest budget to fill in the gaps you feel exist, would be the most prudent and practical approach.

To continue to harass the local media and to complain about their treatment of your efforts won't accomplish anything for you. Most will tell you generally what news coverage you can expect, if you ask rather than demand.

Most media personnel appreciate the efforts of people like you who work for the public benefit. But they also have limits, as do you on what they can do.

AG ECONOMICS CHALLENGE GROWTH

History records that the industrial revolution in the early 19th century sent America's working people scurrying into a new dimension of growth and sophistication that has run mostly unchecked throughout two centuries.

As America makes a frantic pitstop before plunging headlong within a few years into a new century, it appears that new economic factors may put a few clamps on agricultural growth for growth's own sake, and better fine tune its fuel consuming carburetor for efficiency's sake.

In the early 1800's most of America's smaller production units became obsolete, replaced by larger ones and the name of the game was increased efficiency through size. Bigger was distinctly better in all measures, and a man with a bigger machine gained almost always a clearcut advantage over another man with a smaller machine.

It happened in the factories and the mills of the land. And in quick order it spread to the farms. As early as 1833 Hussey and McCormick had invented their reaping machine which came into widespread use at the time of the Civil War. In 1858 Marsh patented a harvester that doubled the harvest speed. In 1878 John Appleby invented a twine binder replacing wire and increasing the speed of the operation eightfold.

James Oliver produced his chilled-steel plow in 1869 followed by disc plows, disc harrows, straddlerow cultivators, and seeders that sowed, covered, and fertilized at the same time. Between 1855 and 1894 the average time of human labor required to produce one bushel of corn declined from four hours and a half to three-quarters of an hour. The production time for a bushel of wheat dropped from three hours in 1830 to ten minutes in 1894. Then came steam power and internal combustion engines and steel wheels were replaced by rubber tires and modern agriculture sent its mid-wife home.

The first three-quarters of the 20th century have been marked by continued equipment and farm-size growth in the interest of stepped-up efficiency. Recent innovations on the farm have included computerized modules and air-conditioned cabs with radios, tape decks, and other sophistications of this modern on-going society. Largeness has increased horsepower which has meant deeper, faster, better tillage and land maintenance. The efforts of a single operator have been greatly multiplied and efficiency ratings have soared based on productivity and manhours saved. The impact has created the greatest success story in human-machine productivity this world has known. Modern industry fell by the wayside as agriculture made world-wide shock waves with one farmer in this nation producing enough for himself and 60 others. The results turned this nation's lagging balance of payments around, and provided the food and fiber resources so desperately needed in under-developed nations.

Yet today in the 1980's this vast system is sorely threatened by inflation, energy costs, government regulations, political interferences, and the same old weather problems of all generations which have combined to cut farmers off at the pass short of profit peaks.

Mississippi farmers have experienced mostly lean profit years since 1973, with the exception of 1979. Some have cashed in their high investment. Others would if they could, but do not have that option due to mortgages or liens. Still others have managed almost miraculously to hold their heads above the water. Some few have continued to make a profit and continue to expand.

But virtually all will be giving attention to further fine tuning their operations and weighing further expansions against the cost-return ratio. Some will be looking to different enterprises, to more controllable markets, and—in short—to more austere operations.

Farmers have come closer to extensive versus intensive operations—a concept that has moved from a future to a manning, nagging, now consideration.

Advisor urges fraud awareness

If someone tries to get you to do something or buy something by dishonest methods, he is committing fraud.

Dr. Julia H. Barnes, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service family, economics and management specialist, says although most salespeople are honest, some will try to take advantage of you with gimmicks and schemes.

"People are in business for money. They don't often give away anything of value for nothing in return. Always shop around and compare prices and quality before buying," she states.

"Sometimes dishonest advertising is worded so cleverly it can fool even the best shopper. Unfortunately elderly, students, sick people and the lonely are special targets and are most often victims of fraud," Barnes says. "Don't be rushed by fast-talking salespeople who tell you the price is going up immediately or a particular item is the last one at that price. Don't keep things on approval from people you don't know. You might not be able to find them to return the item," she explains.

"Know what you're signing. Never sign a contract without reading it carefully. Cross out blank spaces on a contract."

Money Talk

By Norine Barnes

COUPONS EXPLORED

Big savings with coupons requires work. The coupon trend in retailing has raised much curiosity about the big savings some claim are possible.

What percentage can be saved with coupons? Do double coupon redemptions save more than regular coupon redemption? Are prices higher in stores that offer double coupon redemptions than those which give regular redemptions?

These were questions which were included in the study conducted by a New Mexico Extension Home Economist. She shopped once a week for three months to conduct her research.

Prices were compared at three stores using national and retailer coupons. Mail in coupons for refunds were used at one of the stores.

The survey included food, pet supplies, household, and personal items such as paper goods, toothpaste, and hosiery.

An average of 11 coupons were selected each week, but an average of only nine items were bought. Reasons for not using coupons included items not available or another brand was cheaper even after the coupon was discounted.

As a result of the research, she concluded that coupon shopping does save money and as much as 25 percent on the average. The home economist found she bought $150.63 worth of items for $113.76. If that amount was saved every quarter, it would equal a savings of $147.64 a year. That may be far from the $1000 saved by some coupon boosters, but it could make a difference with 'extras' for the family.

The greater percentage of savings was on retailer coupons, mail in coupons, buy one and get one free, small packages of a product, double coupon redemption, and using coupons when items were on special.

The home economist found the total prices on products available in all three stores to be within a few cents of being the same. One item would be higher, another lower making totals about the same.

About 24 percent was saved using double coupon redemption compared to 11 percent average on regular coupons. There were two weeks out of the survey that double shopping didn't save her any money.

The important conclusions drawn from the study are that coupon shopping does save money but it is work. It is necessary to master the art of comparative shopping, requires lots of planning and a good head for figuring and remembering.

Putting all these practices into action might make it possible for you to join the rank of consumers who can brag about coupon saving.

MISSISSIPPI MULES

Jack Schweitzer's guests on the next "Access" at 1 p.m., Sunday, March 1, on Mississippi ETV, are Patti Black and Cavette Taff, both of Jackson. Ms. Black, director of the State Historical Museum, and Taff, exhibits curator at the museum, discuss with Schweitzer the upcoming exhibit featuring mules in Mississippi. The two guests explain that mules have played an important role in Mississippi's economic and cultural heritage for 150 years. And still many Mississippi farmers rely heavily on the hard-working animal.

State Weather Projection

The Mississippi weather forecast for mid-February to mid-March calls for more rain than usual and temperatures averaging near normal, according to the National Weather Service outlook distributed by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Frontal activity probably will increase from the Pacific, say agrometeorologists at the Mid-South Farm Weather Service in Stoneville who prepare the forecasts.

Earlier this winter, fronts were held in check by a massive high pressure system over the western states. The high broke down in the last few days of January, so early February was wetter, say the weather experts.

Most farms have received more than two inches of rain already, and some near the coast have received more than five inches.

Topsoil moisture is in good shape, but subsoil moisture deficits prevail in portions of central and north Mississippi.

Most farms will get 4.5 inches or more in the next four weeks. Measurable rain or snow usually occurs on 9 to 10 days during this period.

Tuesday said in Houston, "This is totally untrue. We have some people working at the site of Latin extraction, but these individuals are American citizens."

In reference UMC's opinion of labor unions at the Port Bienville plant site, Phillips stated, "The union is operating within its rights to become recognized."

"Our company is an open-shop operation, but we are going to have to do what the law requires," the company president noted.

When asked why workers recently were sent a list of rules and regulations with their paychecks after some seven months of construction work had been performed, Phillips replied, "These are standard procedures which were posted when the job began. Some employees said they were not aware of such regulations, so we wanted to be sure everyone is familiar with these rules."

The 10-page list sent to workers contains 24 general safety rules, 16 administrative regulations and five functional regulations.

Phillips explained, "We take these standard procedures and incorporate any admonitions of a client."

The company president noted as an example that Borg-Warner requires no cameras be allowed at the site because of several secret manufacturing processes being incorporated in the plant.

Dispelling that rules and regulations were designed to keep out union leaders, Phillips replied, "I would not address any points of this nature, these regulations are standard procedures."

In reference to if there is any truth to rumors that an unqualified white male worker and his son were promoted or of any other unfair promotion practices, Phillips replied, "I'm not going to comment where there's no specific instances."

"But I don't know of anyone who is even related at the job site. As a standard policy we give out promotions based on ability," he stated.

Denying former construction site engineer Charles Garby was fired because he allegedly told Hancock County Sheriff Ronald A. Peterson that Gov. William Winter requested the local law enforcement agency to stop ticketing employees for expired vehicle tags, the UMC president replied, "I have no knowledge of that."

"Garby elected to terminate himself from the project and he understood present foreman Ray Freeman, would take over when he was available. Garby elected to leave the company, but cannot read his mind as to his reasons for leaving," Phillips explained.

Regarding reports that no local residents have been hired by UMC since Jan. 22, Phillips stated, "It is our customary policy to hire local people, but I can't really say who has been hired — I just don't know."

Freeman was unavailable for comment.

In reference to reports of illegal aliens working at the Borg-Warner plant site, Peterson recently reported, "About two or three months ago we received a report about this."

"We believed there were Mexicans working there, but now we feel UMC has remedied this situation," Peterson said.

When asked if Garby had conveyed an alleged order from Winter, Peterson denied any such message was conveyed and stated, "The governor isn't going to tell me how to run this county and I'm not going to tell him how to run the state."

"Garby was in charge, but I understand he was fired about two weeks ago, the sheriff said."

Peterson said some two months ago he ticketed some 50 workers at the Borg-Warner site and about 40 employees two weeks ago.

"Most of the tickets were issued to people who lived in Hancock or Harrison county over 30 days and still had out-of-state tags on their vehicles," Peterson explained.

Regarding reports that UMC would be terminated by Borg-Warner if unions were allowed at the local construction site, Terry Jones, personnel manager stated, "Borg-Warner doesn't involve itself with the management of employee relations by its contractors."

"There is no need for us to get involved with the contracting people on such matters. As long as they do their job, we're satisfied. There's no truth to the allegation that UMC will be terminated if their workers unionize," Jones explained.

In reference to rumors that Zachary Construction Co. or Brown and Root, Inc. has been considered to replace UMC, Jones flatly denied those allegations.

Clarifying reports that the construction work underway was a contracted (hard dollar) job being worked as a 'cost-plus' agreement, Jones stated, "We have to give the contractor flexibility in the contract because we are doing some redesign work."

"We have a two-phase construction plan. We have Phase Two ahead of us and I've heard UMC will continue on the job. I've heard nothing but praise for UMC's work here," Jones reported.

Jones and Phillips both noted construction work at Port Bienville is progressing well with only minor delays from inclement weather.

Phillips said his company serves 'a wide spectrum' of design and contracting for process industries in the U.S. and is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Jacobs Engineering Group, also of Houston.

The local Borg-Warner plant is expected to begin Phase One production of its plastics in late 1982 with total production planned for 1984.

Lewis explained, that "NLRB" sets forth policies in unfair labor practices and investigates violations of employee rights.

United Energy pays $6.38

United Energy Resources, Inc., parent company of United Gas Pipeline which supplies natural gas to the Cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, reported 1980 consolidated net income of $165.5 million or $6.38 per share, on operating revenues of $4.1 billion, compared with net income of $111.7 million, or $4.55 per share, on $3.1 billion in operating revenues in 1979.

United achieved record levels in net income, earnings per share and operating revenues for the sixth consecutive year in 1980. J. Hugh Roff Jr., United's chairman, president and chief executive officer said.

Per share earnings in 1980 increased 40 percent over 1979.

Fourth quarter earnings for the consolidated United companies in 1980 were $48.3 million, or $1.84 per share, on operating revenues of $1.1 billion, compared with $28.4 million, or $1.10 per share, on operating revenues of $97.8 million for the fourth quarter of 1979.

During the fourth quarter, United experienced improved operating performance by each of its major subsidiaries and an increase in the amount of investment tax credit.

The improved operating performance reflects higher volumes of natural gas sales on both the interstate and intrastate transmission systems, higher oil and gas production levels and prices for Cotton Petroleum, and an increase in utilization and rates by the drilling and well servicing subsidiaries.

United Energy Resources is the parent company of United Gas Pipeline Company (interstate gas transmission), United Texas Transmission Company (intrastate gas transmission), Cotton Petroleum Corporation (oil and gas exploration, development and production), United Energy Services Company (contract drilling and well servicing) and PetroUnited, Inc. (liquids terminaling and marketing).

Kergosien sets state powerlifting record

Three records fell Saturday at the Mississippi Invitational Powerlifting Championships in the Brother Peter Memorial Gymnasium at St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis. Some 31 lifters competed in the day-long event, according to SSC's Brother Bennett, meet coordinator.

Jeff Kergosien of Bay St. Louis, an SSC student, set a new state record for squats in the 123½ pound or 56 kilogram class in successfully handling 352.5 pounds or 160 kilograms.

Dr. Fred Hatfield of New Orleans, lifting in the 220½ pound or 100 kg class set an unofficial world record squat lift of 373.5 kg or 821 pounds on a fourth attempt.

International Powerlifting

Federation world record rules require a new record lift be 40 pounds above the standing record if completed on a fourth try.

Hatfield's lift did meet that requirement.

Tom Hardman lifted a world record bench press of 273 kg or 601.8 pounds.

Hatfield and Davy Davis in the 148-pound class were selected the meet's 'Best Lifters.'

Rhodes Fitness Center of Gulfport took the trophy. The center is operated by Bay St. Louis native Doc Rhodes, an international champion powerlifter.

In the following list of complete results, participants are listed under the pounds-kg class in which they lifted.

Art, essay event open to students

All Mississippi students in grades one through 12 will be eligible to compete for savings bonds and cash scholarship awards in Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Mississippi's Third Annual 'Fitness Is Fun' art and essay competitions.

W. C. Mosley, president of the health care organization, said in Jackson recently, the competitions are being sponsored to promote 'healthier lifestyles and planned programs of physical fitness.'

"The essay competition is open to high school students in grades 10-12. The essay, to be titled 'Fitness for Your Health's Sake,' should be typed and be 750 to 1,500 words in length. The paper should be mailed directly to the Blue Cross and Blue Shield organization," Mosley explained.

The art competition is open to students in grades one through 12 who will compete in four age categories — grades one to three, four to six, seven to nine, and 10-12.

"Winning entries will be selected in each school and then forwarded to the statewide judging. The art may be in any media, but must be no larger than 22 by 28 inches in size," Mosley noted.

"An independent panel of judges will select statewide winners in the essay as well as in the four categories of the art competition," he said.

"Cash scholarships in the amounts of $300 for first place, $200 for second, and $100 for third will be presented to the statewide winners in the 10-12 category of the art contest," Mosley stated.

"Additional winners in the art competition will receive savings bond awards in the amounts of $100 for first place, $75 for second, and $50 for third," Mosley reported.

The deadline for entries is April 3, 1981. Additional information may be obtained through all Mississippi schools participating or by writing 'Fitness Is Fun' School Competitions, P. O. Box 1043, Jackson, Miss. 39205.

Members of Kappa Theta sorority at The University of Mississippi anticipate completion this April of the chapter's new sorority house.

Sorority members will move into the house before the beginning of the fall semester, and will use the house for fall rush.

Anna DiBenedetto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George DiBenedetto of Bay St. Louis, is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta at Ole Miss.

"I think a house always makes a chapter stronger because it brings the girls closer together," says Mrs. Roul Robbans of Germantown, Tenn., Theta house board president.

"I'm just excited we were finally able to build a home for our girls at Ole Miss," she adds.

"Construction on the Theta house, located on Rebel Drive on the Ole Miss campus, began in June 1980. The 27-room building covers 11,650 square feet, and is designed to house 40 girls and a house mother. The house includes 17 bedrooms, five baths and a kitchen, dining room, living room and lounge," a university spokesman notes.

"The Kappa Alpha Theta chapter received its charter in 1978 at the university, and membership since then has expanded to 70. Kappa Alpha Theta is one of 14 social on the Ole Miss campus, sororities recognized at Ole Miss," the spokesman states.

Highway patrol seeking trainees

Applications are now being accepted for a position as patrol officer with the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol.

"A 14-week training school for successful candidates is scheduled to begin in Sept. 8, at the Mississippi Law Enforcement Officers' Training Academy in Rankin County," a patrol spokesman said this week.

"Successful applicants must be in excellent physical condition, free of deformities, at least 23 years old and must have not reached their 36th birthday, and must have lived in the state for the past five years," the spokesman noted.

"Absence while in national service or attending school out of state does not disqualify applicants," the spokesman added.

"Applicants who have a college degree from an accredited four-year college or university in Mississippi will be considered for employment if they are 21 years old," the spokesman stated.

Applications for the position of patrol officer may be secured from the Personnel Officer, Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, Post Office Box 958, Jackson, Ms. 39205, or from patrol district stations in Greenwood, Batesville, New Albany, Starkville, Meridian, Hattiesburg, Gulfport, and Brookhaven.

Deadline for returning applications to the patrol is March 30.

Teachers conservation workshop free

Educators in Mississippi interested in studying the environment will have an unusual opportunity to do so this summer. This study may be performed at no cost to individual teachers, unless they attend for graduate credit.

The event will be the 18th annual Teachers Conservation Workshop. The date for the workshop is June 14-19 and will be held at Gulf Coast Junior College, Perkinston. The workshop is sponsored by the Mississippi Forestry Association in cooperation with the State Department of Education, Mississippi State University and University of Southern Mississippi.

Participants may earn three hours of graduate credit through the Division of Continuing Education, at either MSU or USM. The tuition fee is payable to MSU or USM upon acceptance to the workshop. No undergraduate credit is available. Lodging, meals, and other expenses are paid for by industrial and business firms who are members of MFA.

Educators wishing to attend the workshop should contact Mississippi Forestry Association, 620 North State Street, Jackson, MS 39201. Registration is available to teachers and administrators of grades 1-12 and is limited to 45 persons. Deadline for receiving applications is June 1.

Time at the week-long workshop will be almost equally divided between classroom sessions led by authorities from industry and education, and interesting field trips to see firsthand some of the information gained in the classroom. Subject areas range from environment, forest management, and utilization of wood products, to game management and studies of soil, water and minerals.

Some 15 different areas of study related to conservation education will be covered, providing teachers with materials to take back to their classes in the fall for teaching a unit on conservation education. Instructors will include conservationists with state and federal government agencies, industrial foresters, and faculty members from various colleges and universities in the state.

Finerty participates in university program

NANCY FINERTY

Nancy Finerty of Bay St. Louis is a participant of the University Scholars Program at The University of Mississippi.

"The program is designed to challenge and stimulate academically superior students at Ole Miss. Students who participate in the program are able to study special courses designed for the scholars program, concentrate on their academic interests by undertaking individual projects and tutorials, and meet with distinguished visitors at the University," a University spokesman says.

Finerty reports, "I am minoring in scholars because it will allow me to perform extensive research in the field of journalism and to help me in being accepted to law school."

Finerty is the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Martin J. Finerty Jr. of Bay St. Louis. She is a journalism major, member of Phi Eta Sigma national freshman honorary, Lambda Sigma national sophomore honorary, Daily Mississippian staff member and a member of Alpha Omicron Pi social sorority and Dorm Judicial Council.

Speech program ok'd at The W

The Speech-Language Pathology and Audiology Program at Mississippi University for Women Speech and Hearing Center in Columbus has been re-accredited by the Professional Services Board of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association.

"The program at 'The W' was initially accredited in 1976 under the full standards set forth by the board. This year's re-accreditation was simply a reaffirmation of the program's standards based on an annual report," a university spokesman says.

"A full review, including a written report and an on-site visit, will be conducted next year in compliance with the board's periodic five-year examination policy," the spokesman reports.

The accreditation process is voluntary on the part of the school, says Dr. Francis Griffith, director of the Speech and Hearing Clinic.

"It is a consumer protection type of accreditation which we think is important for the public to be aware of," he says.

"It is designed for the protection of consumers of professional services to insure the services they are receiving are of really professional character," the director adds.

Griffith pointed out the services upon which the accreditation is based are rendered by students in training.

"Sometimes in the minds of the public there is some question of whether they are getting the same quality service (from students) that they would get if they went to a standing clinic," he says.

The program of services available from the MUW students in training has to meet the same standards as would any free-standing clinic, Griffith states.

"That's a nice tribute to the quality of the training program," he adds.

State official praises county school program

Hancock County Schools District's Title I, Elementary Secondary Education Act, Supplementary Tutorial Reading Project was recently praised by an on-site visitor, Milton Matthews, State Title I regional supervisor.

Matthews commended the Title I aides for their 'enthusiastic and effective tutorial assistance' which allows pupils to work at a pace geared to needs and abilities.

MSU tells student aid deadline date

Students who expect to enroll at Mississippi State University for the 1981-82 academic year and wish to apply for financial aid are reminded the priority deadline for applications is April 1.

"Students who wish to apply for scholarships must submit their applications before April 1. Students may apply for the Basic Opportunity Grant, Supplemental Opportunity

"He was also very pleased with results of current data showing an average per pupil gain of more than one month's growth for each month's instruction," says Harlin Hill, district federal programs coordinator.

"Title I of the Elementary Secondary Education Act provides Hancock County School System with Supplemental Programmed Tutorial Reading for eligible Grant, College Work-Study, and the National Direct Student Loan," a university spokesman says.

"Applications for all federal student programs are available in the Financial Aid Office on the MSU campus and at high school counselor offices," the spokesman adds.

Requests for applications by mail should be sent to Office of Student Financial Aid, Drawer AB, Mississippi State, Miss. 39762.

children in grades one through four. Comparable services are extended to Annunciation Catholic School in Kiln," Hill reports.

"Under the direction of classroom teachers and the Title I supervisor, the aides tutor pupils in a one-to-one setting by following the plans of professionally prepared materials," he explains.

"The program utilizes structured procedures that help the aides become more proficient in identifying and correcting reading problems," Hill says.

"The tutorial approach has been most effective in meeting the needs of program pupils by motivating children to achieve and by improving self esteem of the children, emphasizing success rather than failure," Hill states.

"Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, (amended by Public Law 95-561, Nov. 1, 1978) was enacted by Congress to provide supplementary instruction for pupils whose academic achievement is significantly below grade placement," Hill notes.

"The Title I Project of the Hancock district is approved and monitored by the State Department of Education and meets the approved state and federal guidelines," he adds.

SHIPWRECKED

A two-part special about two young boys shipwrecked on a deserted island is the next presentation on 'Once Upon a Classic' at 1 p.m., Saturday, February 28 and March 7. 'Black Island' follows the adventures of the two boys who find themselves in the predicament during their school holiday. The suspense intensifies when the boys realize their fears of being alone must be set aside as they discover two escaped convicts also inhabiting the island.

CONFLICT—Tommy Lee Jones, left, as Abner Snopes comes into conflict with his son Sarty, portrayed by Shawn Whittington, right, of Greenwood in William Faulkner's "Barn Burning," to be presented on "The American Short Story" at 10 p.m., Wednesday, March 4, on the Mississippi ETV Network. Also featured on "The American Short Story" that evening will be Mark Twain's "The Man That Corrupted Hadleyburg," which will be presented first. It lasts about 40 minutes, followed immediately by "Barn Burning."

University scientists improving energy cell

At five cents per kilowatt-hour, the sun provides the energy equivalent of about $300,000 in electricity to each acre of Mississippi land every year.

"Only a small fraction of this solar energy could in principle supply a large portion of the world's energy needs," a University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg spokesman says. "One device which converts light to electrical energy is the photovoltaic cell. Such cells work by using a chemical reaction that goes in one direction in the presence of light and in the opposite direction in dark," the spokesman explains.

When light strikes a photovoltaic cell, which consists of a special dye solution between two electrodes, a current of electrons flows from one electrode to the other through an external circuit. This current can be used to do useful work as electricity provides," the spokesman further notes.

Drs. David Creed and Newton Fawcett, researchers at USM studying the cells are striving to improve the efficiency of photovoltaic cells by making new dyes and electrode materials. "The scientists estimate

Delta State offers Great Britain tour

Delta State University's Division of Curriculum and Instruction in the School of Education in Cleveland, Miss. is sponsoring a study-tour of education in England, Scotland and Wales July 5-25.

Dr. Ron Garrison, professor of Curriculum and Instruction at Delta State, will serve as tour host and will be assisted in lectures, discussions and school visits by well known British educator, Gordon Lowden of the University College of North Wales.

Garrison says the tour may be taken for graduate or undergraduate credit in elementary education.

"The tour price of $2,200 includes tuition, roundtrip airfare from Memphis, accommodations, full English breakfast (except in London), and the services of a coach from July 6-21," Garrison explains.

"All interested persons should reserve space on the study-tour as soon as possible by sending reservations and deposits to me at P.O. Box 3113, DSU, Cleveland, Miss. 38733, or phone 843-8955," Garrison says.

The tour itinerary includes the flight from Memphis to Glasgow on July 5, followed by a visit to the Scottish Highland, the English Lake district, North Wales, the English Cotswolds, London and the return from London to Memphis.

UNO professor to lead

WWII battlefield tour

Two tours of major battlefields of World War II will be directed by Dr. Stephen E. Ambrose, official biographer of Dwight D. Eisenhower and professor of history at the University of New Orleans, May 16-30 and May 31-June 14.

The tours, which will include lectures and informal discussions, will begin in London with visits to key sites in that city, followed by a visit to General Eisenhower's D-Day headquarters in Portsmouth. Participants will cross the English Channel at night, arriving off the Normandy coast at the first light of day, walk on the Utah and Omaha Beaches and hear commentary from those who were there.

In Paris, they will walk in DeGaulle's footsteps on his victory march down the Champs Elysees and meet Pierre Bertaux, a member of the French Resistance and later DeGaulle's director general of the French Secret Service. Both tours will include a visit to the Battle of the Bulge Museum in Bastogne.

Tour I will then continue north to Holland and hear the tragic tale of "The Bridge Too Far;" tour II will turn back up the Rhine to Stuttgart to listen to Manfred Rommel's personal insights into his father and will conclude in Heidelberg.

Other speakers on the tours are John S. D. Eisenhower, Eisenhower's son and former ambassador to Belgium; General Sir Kenneth Strong, head at SHAEF during the campaigns in Northwestern Europe and the only man living who was there for the D-Day decision; Michael Foot, author of "S.O.B. in France," the official history of British collaboration with the French Resistance; Forrest Pogue, director of the Eisenhower Institute at the Smithsonian Institution and a combat historian who was present at the Normandy invasion; Admiral Friedrich Ruge, a member of Rommel's staff and currently professor of political science, Tubingen University; and Ronald Lewin, an artillery officer with General Montgomery.

For further information on the tours contact Peter McLean, Ltd., 203 Carondelet St. New Orleans, (504) 581-1278.

"Since photovoltaic cell research requires collaboration in both photochemistry and electrochemistry, the USM professors do have an edge over the competition—Creed studies with Nobel Laureate Sir George Porter at the Royal Institution in London and is recognized as the leading U.S. authority on exciplex photochemistry," the spokesman notes. "Fawcett is an electroanalytical chemist by training who gained previous research experience at the University of California's Los Alamos Laboratory and the Bell System's Sandia Laboratory," the spokesman adds.

150 WAYS TO SAVE! No-FRILLS

Food doesn't have to be fancy to be good.

Why pay more for expensive extras you don't really need? With No-Frills we offer only a limited selection of basic foods in plain, simple black-and-white packages. We eliminate colorful labels, fancy containers, and the expense of national advertising.

We also offer you an expanded line of the basic household products you buy most often and use plenty of. They're not scented and don't come in elaborate containers. The paper products are single-ply and not available in extravagant designs and colors. But they do get the job done.

And we guarantee that you will get your money's worth. Look for the Valu-Time® seal of approval: it's your assurance that each No-Frills product meets our strict specifications. And, as with everything we sell, if you're not completely satisfied we'll give you your money back.

Good nutrition, good taste, good value...No-Frills!
